

Future Headlines

Step 1: Generate future headlines

Based on your notes from the previous activity, brainstorm as many future headlines as you can. Write each headline on a separate sticky note.

Remember to create both dystopian and utopian headlines!

Step 2: Share headlines with the group

As you share, sort them into two categories: dystopian and utopian. By the end, your group should have two collections of headlines—one dystopian, one utopian.

Step 3: Vote for 3 headlines to develop into newspaper stories

Each participant gets 3 stickers to vote for their favorite headlines. Be sure to vote for a mix of dystopian and utopian headlines. Ultimately, your group should select 3 headlines in total, including both types.

Future Newspaper

Step 1: Develop news stories for the selected headlines

Use the provided templates to develop both narratives and illustrations. At the end, your group should complete 3 future news stories.

Step 2: Label each news story with a highlighter by writing D or U

Use a highlighter to write “D” for dystopian stories and “U” for utopian stories so that the story types are easy to identify.

Step 3: Organize your newspaper

Organize and glue your templates onto the blank newspaper. You can write your names as the newspaper editors in the bottom right corner.

Step 4: Share 1 news story with everyone

Choose one story to share with everyone at the design retreat. Present your future newspaper and read the selected story aloud. Each group has 2 minutes to present and 1 minute for questions and feedback.
